

Angelidi Monegro with Governor Patrick at the Project 351 volunteer event

Saturday, January 15, 2011, 8th grader Angelidi Monegro served as 'Youth Ambassador' from Lawrence for Project 351, a state-wide effort led by Governor Patrick to recognize one service-minded student from each city and town in the Commonwealth.

The event took place on Saturday, Dr. King's birthday, and Angie served on a team preparing a children's preschool room at the Dimock Youth Center in Roxbury. Angie painted walls and ABC's and participated in a town hall meeting and celebration with Governor Patrick. Other student-teams spread out around Boston to address other projects, and this day of service impacted the lives of over 10,000 children in need of nourishment, school readiness, basic essentials, and more inspirational learning environments.

New England Cable News clip about the project:

http://www.necn.com/01/15/11/Mass-kids-help-other-kids-in-Project-351/landing\_newengland.html?blockID=391982&feedID=4206

Boston Globe article about the project:

http://www.boston.com/news/education/k\_12/articles/2011/01/16/states\_youth\_find\_reward\_in\_service/